Henry M. Mottesheard

Mr. Henry M. Mottesheard is a Senior Systems Engineering and Enterprise Architect with twenty years of experience in support to the National Reconnaissance Office (NRO), National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency (NGA), and Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI). Expertise includes systems engineering and requirements development, technology sufficiency reviews, Enterprise and system architecture formulation, risk analysis and mitigation, cost estimation, analysis of alternatives and budget analyses for ground architectures, terrestrial communication systems, and information technology infrastructure. Mr. Mottesheard earned his Bachelor of Arts in Economics from Old Dominion University. He holds a Master of Science in Systems Engineering from The George Washington University and is a Certified Enterprise Architect. He lives with his family in Arlington, VA.